Message from the Chief Editor

Aid transparency has always been a core value agreed upon by both recipient countries and development partners globally in order to help make aid more effective. In this context, Nepal has been taking leadership in collecting aid information and making it transparent through various measures, such as the Aid Management Platform (AMP), an online web-based information system set up in the Ministry of Finance since 2010 to support the IECCD. Since then, the Ministry of Finance has been even more effective in managing and coordinating aid information. As part of this aim, it has published three consecutive Development Cooperation Reports, the latest published in March this year.

The Development Cooperation Report is the key annual reference document for statistics and analysis on trends in international aid in Nepal. This year's Development Cooperation Report 2012-13 seeks to provide insights into how to address the challenges of aid effectiveness being faced by Nepal, with a focus on analytical evidences to ensure that the external resources are being wisely mobilized, both now and in the future. The Report gives an overall picture of official development assistance mobilized in the country during FY 2012-13.

The DCR has reflected a wide range of development assistance mobilized in the country during FY 2012-13. The most important among them is the increasing level of donor commitments over the years but the slight decline in disbursements during the same period. This indicates that our pace of development has been slow and our implementing agencies have a low absorptive capacity. However, this does not mean that the decline in overall volume of aid disbursement is due to donor's declining trend of providing development assistance.

Another critical finding was the trend of aid disbursement channeled through the on budget (64 percent) and off budget (36 percent) mechanism. Bringing all aid under on budget is a challenge. However, the increase in the proportion of off budget projects was also due to the decline in the level of disbursement provided by big donors like the World Bank Group and ADB in the previous year. Similarly, off budget projects also cover 21 percent of technical assistance out of the total volume of aid disbursement together with humanitarian assistance and other projects directly implemented by development partners.

Moreover, the percentage of aid on budget may not necessarily be the same each year due to various factors affecting the level of disbursement. Another significant finding is the various evidences of aid fragmentation in the country, from a donor, sector and ministerial perspective. This information will help both the Government and DPs to appropriately allocate resources in needy areas.

Another issue brought up by the Report is the gradual progress of capturing INGO aid information in the country. So far, 80 INGOs have been trained and have been given access to AMP; they will gradually start reporting their information into the system so that the Government will be able to capture the majority of INGO aid information in the future. The findings of the Report are thus expected to encourage policy makers as well as development partners to spend aid money wisely so as to take full benefit of development efforts within Nepal.

Bringing DCR with analytical discussion on aid operation is an outcome of Government's firm commitment on aid transparency. The Government is also using DCR data to bring an evidence based Development Cooperation Policy (DCP) in Nepal.

Thank you

said that low absorption capacity of the country cannot be overlooked though some reporting and technical flaws were responsible for this.

Delivering his remarks, Finance Secretary Mr. Yuba Raj Bhusal said that NPPR is the right forum for all to discuss the common issues that are hindering smooth implementation of the projects/programs. He further said that Government is always committed to continue reform agenda to move forward by translating commitment into practice. He even requested the fellow secretaries and development partners to own the Action Plan.

Addressing the Meeting, on behalf of the DPs, Mr. Johannes Zutt, emphasized on the result oriented actions rather than the process oriented ones. He said that investment, infrastructure development and inclusion

Development Cooperation

US$ 959 million of which 49 percent was contributed by multilateral donors and 51 percent by bilateral donors. The amount was disbursed for 508 different projects. The disbursement covered both the on-budget and off-budget projects. However, this amount did not cover the core funding delivered by INGOs. Similarly, 61 percent of the aid was delivered as grant, 21 percent as TA and 18 percent as loan assistance.

The World Bank, Asian Development Bank and UN Groups had provided higher amount of assistance among the multilateral donors while the UK, the USA, Japan, India and Switzerland had provided the highest amount among the bilateral donors during the period. The World Bank had provided US$ 231.4 million during the period while ADB and UN had provided US$ 101 million and US$ 66.6 million respectively. The education sector received the largest share of the aid disbursed followed by health, local development, road and energy. Of the amount disbursed, 64 percent was channelized through Government budget system and 36 percent channelized outside the budget. While reviewing the Three Year Development Plan policy cluster, more aid was disbursed to social sector compared to infrastructure sector. Excluding the national level projects, Central Development Region has received the largest amount of aid followed by Mid-Western, Eastern, Western and Far-Western Development Region. Stand alone projects covered more than half of the projects under implementation and no progress was made to replicate SWAp from health and education sectors to other sectors. Speaking on the occasion, Hon. Finance Minister Dr. Mahat said that the state would bring in a new foreign assistance policy to make the foreign assistance more systematic and transparent. He further said that the new policy would help minimize aid fragmentation. He said that efforts would be made to bring the assistance within national budget system. Dr. Mahat thanked the IECCD team for having produced such a comprehensive Report showing Nepal's aid scenario in a detailed analytical way. The Report Launching Ceremony was attended by Government officials and a large number of media persons.

Nepal has been receiving external resources for over six decades and aid continues to play an important role in her socio-economic development. External aid represents about 22 percent of the national budget in FY 2013-14, and these resources finance most of the development expenditures. The total government expenditure is estimated to be about 28 percent of GDP, whereas the internal revenue collected was about 17.4 percent of GDP (2012-13). Foreign aid accounted for about 6.2 percent of GDP in FY 2012-13. As such, foreign aid is instrumental in supplying the required resources for overall development of the Nepal. Ministry of Finance is taking lead in collecting aid data and making them transparent through various measures. The Aid Management Platform (AMP), an online web-based information system was set-up in the Ministry of Finance in 2010 to assist the IECCD of the Ministry. With the objective of making aid information transparent and accessible to the majority of stakeholders, AMP portal dedicated to international development information has been made public since July 2013. The AMP, being the major source of data to generate information contained in the DCR, needs to be further strengthened and institutionalized for enhancement in the quality of the DCR .
